Art Start of The Day

This week during our Art Start of the Day, we have been looking at a painting that, on first glance, just looks like a portrait of a distinguished General, but on closer observation is much more.

"The General's Family" by the Mexican painter Octavio Ocampo is often misattributed to iconic Spanish surrealist, Salvador Dali who created similar optical illusions.

The painting, on closer inspection, reveals 9 faces that represent the family of the General. Can you find them all?
